HISTORY

The story and interpretation of man's experiences and achievements is the subject of historical study. An understanding of history is indispensable to the education of civilized man. It comprehends the development of states and of economic, social and religious institutions as well as literary, cultural, and intellectual movements. The study of history aids in giving perspective to related subjects, notably the humanities (languages and literatures, philosophy, music and art), and the social studies (law, sociology and anthropology, economics, cultural and historical geography, history of science, political science, international relations, and psychology).

The Department of History offers courses for either a general knowledge of the history of civilization or a special knowledge of the history of particular topics and chronological periods. Students may major in history for historical knowledge, training in research, preparation for teaching, or for government work at the local, state or national level.
Major in History

To be accepted as a major in the Department of History the student must have attained junior standing. All prospective majors must consult and register with the departmental undergraduate adviser. A minimum of 30 credits is required. A history major may complete more than 40 credits in history but must complete at least 80 credits outside the major. Requirements follow:

1. At least one course in United States history, one course in European (including British) history, and one course in the history of the “third world” (i.e., Africa, Asia or Latin America).

2. At least one of these three required courses must deal with the History of Europe and/or the Mediterranean before A.D. 1500 or with the History of Africa or Asia before these areas fell heavily under European influence. (L&S: 112 and 122, and History 121 and 123 may also be taken to fulfill this requirement.) Majors are advised to obtain information about the courses which fulfill this requirement from the Undergraduate Adviser.

3. At least fifteen credits in upper level course work (300-699) taken in residence at the University of Wisconsin with at least a C average. Advanced courses taken under 1 and 2 above count toward fulfilling this requirement.

4. Certification of competence in written English: The History Department will certify the competence in written English of all history majors who have completed an upper level (300-699) History course at the University of Wisconsin-Madison with a grade of C or higher. It is the student's responsibility to bring his or her grade report form, showing the grade in such a course, to the Undergraduate Adviser so that the College of Letters and Science certification form may be completed. This requirement must be completed by the end of the first semester of the student's senior year. Those students who have not completed any upper level history course before the end of their first semester of the senior year may, with permission of the Undergraduate Adviser, delay this procedure until the first semester's grade report forms are available. Double majors must obtain certification from both departments.

Major in the History of Culture

A student may choose to major in the history of culture to emphasize the cultural aspects of historical development. A minimum of 30 credits and a maximum of 40 credits in history courses are required, to include the following: (a) two semester courses in American history; at least 3 semester courses in history other than American history, including at least one course in either Ancient or Medieval history; at least 3 semester courses in advanced history courses chosen to cover a logical segment of European or American cultural history. In addition, in consultation with his adviser or professor in his major area of interest, must complete at least three advanced courses in related departments or in humanities or social studies (for example, Latin-American history and Spanish literature and art; Greek history and ancient philosophy and science; American history and law and political theory). When the student's interest lies in the cultural history of a period or country outside the English or American fields, he must take an attainment examination or its equivalent in course work in the appropriate foreign language. Students should discuss this major with the undergraduate adviser in the history department before enrolling in History seminars chosen from 481, 482, 571, 572, 573, 574, or 696, or write an acceptable senior thesis, registering for History 691-692 during the senior year. The thesis topic should be selected in the spring of the junior year after consultation with the professor with whom the student wishes to work, and registered with the Undergraduate Adviser in the History Department.

L&S General Honors Program

To earn the B.A. or B.S. with honors, majors in history must complete the following: (a) the general course degree requirements of the college, (b) the requirements of the General Honors Program, and (c) the Junior-Senior honors curriculum in the department.

Junior-Senior Honors Curriculum: Of the 30-40 credits required for the major, 6 must be in the special honors course 481 and 482 open to juniors and seniors. Any of the undergraduate colloquia (696) may serve as substitute courses for 481-482. In addition, a senior honors thesis (691-692) is required. The topic of the thesis should be selected after consultation with the professor in the student's field of interest; normally, this consultation should occur in the spring of the junior year. Students must maintain a general grade-point average of at least 3.0 and a grade-point average of at least 3.5 in the Department of History. Additional information is available from the Honors Adviser in the history department.

L&S Honors Candidates Majoring in other departments: Honors candidates who are not majors in history may still take any of the Honors courses offered in the history department with the exception of the Senior Honors Thesis (History 691-692). Enrollment preference will be given to history majors to limit the size of the classes, but students from other departments are welcomed and encouraged to take advantage of the course offerings.

Distinction in the Major

Students who are not L&S candidates for Honors may work for departmental Honors. The requirements are: (1) The student must have an overall grade-point average of at least 3.0 and a grade-point average of at least 3.5 in all history courses by the end of the senior year; (2) The student must complete either two semesters of history seminars chosen from 481, 482, 571, 572, 573, 574 or 696, or write an acceptable senior thesis, registering for History 691-692 during the senior year. The thesis topic should be selected in the spring of the junior year after consultation with the professor with whom the student wishes to work, and registered with the Undergraduate Adviser in the History Department.

Thesis of Distinction

Students not enrolled in the L&S Honors Program and not working for distinction in the major may qualify for the honor of Distinction. This is granted for an exceptionally good or original thesis written in History 691-692, without consideration of the student's record in any other courses. Normally the thesis topic and the professor with whom the student wishes to work should be selected during the spring of the junior year, and registered with the Undergraduate Adviser in the History Department.
