HISTORY

311 Humanities

The story and interpretation of human experiences and achievements are the subjects of historical study. It comprehends the development of states and of economic, social, and religious institutions as well as literary, cultural and intellectual movements. The study of history aids in giving perspective to related subjects, notably the humanities (languages and literatures, philosophy, music and art), and the social sciences (law, sociology and anthropology, economics, cultural and historical geography, history of science, political science, international relations, and psychology).

The Department of History offers courses for either a general knowledge of the history of civilization or a special knowledge of the history of particular topics and chronological periods. Students may major in history for historical knowledge, training in research, preparation for teaching, or for government work at the local, state or national level.

Major in History

To be accepted as a major in the Department of History the student must have attained junior standing. All prospective majors must consult and register with the departmental undergraduate adviser.

A minimum of 30 credits is required. A history major may complete up to 40 credits in history and must complete at least 80 credits outside the major. Requirements follow:

1. At least one course in United States history, one course in European history, and one course in the history of the Third World (Africa, Asia or Latin America).

2. At least one of these three required courses must deal with the History of Europe and/or the Mediterranean before A.D. 1500 or with the History of Africa or Asia before these areas fell heavily under European influence.

3. At least one History seminar course chosen from History 481, 482, 571, 572, 573, or 574. In special circumstances, with prior approval of the Department Chairperson, students may fulfill this requirement by taking one of the department's graduate seminars.
4. At least fifteen credits in upper level course work (300-699), taken in residence at UW-Madison with at least a C average. Advanced courses taken under 1 and 2 above count toward fulfilling this requirement.

5. Certification of competence in written English: The History Department certifies the expository English language competency of any of its students who have successfully completed the History major. This certification will be automatically noted on the student’s record by the Degree Summary Office upon completion of the requirement. Double majors are advised to contact their other major department since certification requirements and procedures may vary.

6. Courses are grouped below according to which requirements they fulfill.

*Course content varies with instructor. Consult the Timetable.

Major in the History of Culture

A student may choose to major in the history of culture to emphasize the cultural aspects of historical development. A minimum of 30 credits and a maximum of 40 credits in history courses are required, to include the following:

At least one semester course in U.S. history; at least one semester course in European history; at least one semester course in the history of the Third World (Africa, Asia or Latin America); at least one of these three required courses must deal with the history of Europe and/or the Mediterranean before A.D. 1500 or with the history of Africa or Asia before these areas fell heavily under European influence; at least 3 semester courses in advanced history courses covering a segment of European or American cultural history. In addition, in consultation with an advisor or professor in the major area of interest, students must choose at least three advanced courses in related departments in humanities or social studies (for example, Latin-American history and Spanish literature, and art; Greek history and ancient philosophy and science; American history and law and political theory). When the students’ interests lie in the cultural history of a period or country outside the English or American fields, they must take an examination or its equivalent in course work in the appropriate foreign language. Students should discuss this major with the undergraduate advisor in the history department for consultation on an appropriate program.

Joint Major in History and History of Science

A minimum of 30 and a maximum of 40 credits in History and History of Science, distributed as follows:

1. At least four courses in History. At least one of these courses must be in United States history, at least one must be in European history, and at least one must be in the History of the Third World (Africa, Asia, or Latin America).

2. At least four courses in the History of Science. Students are urged to take one or more of these from the 300-399 series.

3. At least 15 credits of upper level course work (as defined by each department) of which at least 6 credits must be in History courses and at least 6 credits must be in History of Science.

4. Knowledge of a science is recommended but not required for the joint major.

Students should not declare this joint major before discussing it with the Undergraduate Adviser in History and with the Chairman of the History of Science Department.

Honors Program

To earn the B.A. or B.S. with Honors, majors in history must complete (a) the L & S general certification requirements, (b) the minors Program requirements, and (c) the junior-senior honors curriculum in the department.

Junior Senior Honors Curriculum: Of the 60-64 credits required for the major, 6 must be in the special Honors course 481 and 482 open to juniors and seniors. Any of the undergraduate courses (571-574) may serve as substitute courses for 481-482. In addition, a Senior Honors Thesis (681-682) is required. The topic of the thesis should be selected after consultation with the professor in the student’s field of interest; normally, this consultation should occur in the spring of the junior year. Students must maintain a general grade-point average of at least 3.0 and a grade-point average of at least 3.5 in the Department of History. Additional information is available from the Honors advisor in the History Department.

Honors Candidates Majoring in other departments: Honors candidates who are not majors in history may still take any of the Honors courses offered in the History Department with the permission of the student’s undergraduate advisor in the history department for consultation on an appropriate program.

Distinction in the Major

Students who are not L & S candidates for Honors may work for Distinction in the Major. To be granted this award the student must inform the Undergraduate Adviser at least one month in advance that the following requirements have been met: (1) The student must have an overall grade-point average of at least 3.0 and a grade-point average of at least 3.5 in all history courses by the end of the senior year; (2) The student must complete either two semesters of history seminars chosen from 461, 465, 571, 572, 573, 574 or write an acceptable senior thesis, registering for History 491-692 during the senior year. The thesis topic should be selected in the spring of the junior year after consultation with the professor, with whom the student wishes to work, and registered with the Undergraduate Adviser in History.

Thesis of Distinction

Students not enrolled in the L & S Honors Program and not working for Distinction in the Major may qualify for the honor of Thesis of Distinction. This is granted for an exceptionally good or original thesis written in History 691-692, without consideration of the student’s record in any other courses. Normally the thesis topic and the professor with whom the student wishes to work should be selected during the spring of the junior year, and registered with the Undergraduate Adviser in the History Department.

HISTORY OF SCIENCE
410 South Hall
Professors Daub, Ihde, Lindberg, Rose, Siegfried, Sonne decker, Stauffer; Associate Pro fessors Hills, Numbers, Parme giano, Siegel; Assistant Professors Leventhal, N. Reynolds.
Cours es in the history of science are de voted to the knowledge of the development of scientific ideas and methods, and their cultural relationships.
Major
Thirty credits of historical work, and proficiency in a single science in the Division of Biological Sciences or the Division of Physical Sciences. For the historical work, at least 18 credits must be offered from the history of science courses listed under Group A and at least 6 credits from the history courses listed under Group B. The remaining credits may be selected from any of the courses listed under Groups A, B, or C. Proficiency in a science can be demonstrated by completion of 30 credits toward the major requirements of a science department, with a 2.5 cumulative GPA in courses in that department. Normally, courses numbered 300 and above carry "advanced credit" for purposes of the major.
Pre-medical students will automatically complete the science requirements for the history of science major, and may find a major in this department an appropriate way to add breadth to their undergraduate education. Science majors whose interests have turned toward the humanities may find the history of science major an efficient way to utilize their work in science while pursuing new educational goals. The efficiency of science may also be an appropriate major for students with a variety of other professional goals, such as science writing, law, library science, and history and philosophy of science.
Those wishing to major in the history of science should consult with the department as early as possible, and must have departmental approval of their program.
