SELECTION OF STUDY PROGRAM

Graduate students are admitted to specific programs of study in the History Department. This is an important choice. To change to a different study program after admission requires a formal application to the new program during the regular admissions process. So please choose carefully: your graduate work will be in the study program to which you are admitted.

Indicate below your first choice among the study programs listed in the box to the right. You may also indicate the professor with whom you hope to work, although this is not required. Note that applicants must meet any language requirements specified in the descriptions of study programs in the Admissions Packet. Please indicate your language preparation in the space provided below.

Special instruction for applicants in:

- Comparative world history: admission to the Ph.D. Program in Comparative World History occurs only after the student has earned an M.A. in another program.
- European history: choose one of the major chronological periods - ancient; medieval; early modern; modern. If you wish, you may also indicate a geographical/thematic area of interest within that period.
- U.S. history: you are encouraged to indicate a particular field of interest in U. S. History
- Indicate also your interest in the Bridge Program between African American Studies and History
