COURSE DESCRIPTION

This course explores how the notion that Asians in the U.S. are both a racial minority and a foreigner makes Asian Americans a fascinating subject to study in order to gain a better understanding of the values that mediate national belonging. Throughout this semester, we will develop how the racialization of Asian in the U.S. as the “foreigners-within” crucially unfolds the contradictions and complications of national belonging.

The central questions guiding our study will be: How does racism nullify the belonging of assimilated Asians in the U.S.? Do we really want a “multicultural society” or do we believe that there should be a clear sense of what unifies us as “Americans”? How does one’s class status enhance his/her racial belonging? Is the racial divide always between white/black?

COURSE POLICIES

Ground Rules: This course is open to a variety of ways of interpreting history and culture and students are encouraged to share their questions and ideas in lecture and discussion sections. Since there will be differences and disagreements, students are expected to show respect to the comments and positions of fellow students, of the graduate instructors, as well as of the professor. We need to all work together to create an environment that fosters critical thinking and respect for different ways of thinking.

Each student is warmly encouraged to meet with the professor and the graduate instructors during office hours and by appointment.

Attendance: Regular and prompt attendance, active participation, and mature attentiveness during lecture meetings are mandatory. The professor will not distribute lecture notes via e-mail for students who miss lecture and lecture notes will not be posted on the course webpage.

Readings: Students are expected to complete each week's required readings before Monday's lecture. You need to bring your notes and a copy of the assigned readings for the week to each discussion section.

Discussion Sections: You will NOT pass this course even if you do all the written work and exams but do not attend weekly discussion sections. Your discussion leader has full authority to assign homework, administer quizzes, and require drafts of papers. She will provide you with additional guidelines and policies for the discussion section.

Writing Assignments and Examinations: Assignments are always due during the first ten minutes of lecture. Any assignment received after the first ten minutes of lecture on the due date is considered late and will not be evaluated or credited. No late work will be accepted. E-mailed submissions of papers are not permitted and will not be credited or graded, without exception. Exam 1 and Final Exam 2 will be given according to the schedule indicated in the course syllabus and according to university schedule. No incompletes will be granted for the course except in cases of personal emergencies subject to the discretion of the professor and the valid documentation of the emergency. Students are responsible for retaining a copy of all exams, quizzes, and assignments.

Honesty: Please read the university policy on plagiarism. All information borrowed from print sources and/or the internet must be clearly identified and properly credited. Any instance of plagiarism or cheating on exams, quizzes, and written assignments will result in an “F” grade for the assignment and the course.

Abilities: Any student who feels that he or she may need special accommodation due to a disability should contact the professor. Please also contact the McBurney Disability Resource Center (http://www.mcburney.wisc.edu/) at 608-263-2741 (phone); 263-6393 (TTY); 263-2998 (FAX); FrontDesk@mcb.wisc.edu to ensure that accommodations are implemented in a timely fashion.
