COURSE NO. COURSE TITLE INSTRUCTOR
375 The Middle East in World Affairs since 1900 Mr. Humphreys

COURSE DESCRIPTION
A critical survey of the international politics of the Middle East (i.e., Egypt, eastern Arab countries, Israel, Turkey, Iran) during the 20th century. We shall deal both with the intra-regional conflicts and rivalries of this area and with the relations of Middle Eastern countries with outside powers--principally Great Britain, France, the United States and the Soviet Union. Major topics: (1) the dissolution of the Ottoman Empire and the creation of a European-dominated mandate system; (2) the Arab-Israeli conflict; (3) the emergence of independent Arab states after World War II; (4) Iran's relations with Great Britain and the United States; (5) the impact of U.S.-Soviet rivalry in the region. The subject matter of the course is obviously intensely controversial. One purpose of the course is to show the variety of ways in which this subject matter can be described and interpreted by intelligent, fair-minded, and well-informed persons. A second is to show how the region's conflicts can be understood in terms of the legitimate goals and values of the various participants in its politics.

LECTURES
Two lectures per week, Tues. and Thurs., 2:00-3:15. Discussion sections if the size of the class requires it. Student participation in the development of a theme or argument of a lecture will often be sought. From time to time we shall discuss particular documents which have been distributed to the class.

WRITTEN ASSIGNMENTS and EXAMINATIONS
All students: one mid-term examination, one final examination, one 7-10 page essay on any one of several assigned problems. (The essay is not a research paper; only assigned readings and class notes are necessary.) 4-Credit students: an additional essay of about 5 pp., evaluating at least two serious books on a related topic. Graduate students: special requirements to be determined in consultation with the instructor.
