Located between the Chinese and Indic civilizations, Southeast Asia has been a region of striking diversity where for more than two thousand years the complex indigenous cultures encountered with and were enriched by world's major influences – from major religions like Hinduism, Buddhism, Islam, and Confucianism to Western influences. Yet what makes the region distinctive is also the subtle commonality of local polities, societies and cultures. The complex traditions which have shaped the history of the region are very much alive today despite colonization and Westernization over the past hundred years.

This class explores major issues in the history of the region before colonialism rather than a chronology or a narrative of major events. Among the issues covered in this class are the early settlements, state formation and development from a simple polity to an empire, influences from the Indic, Chinese, and Western civilizations.
