Course Rationale: In twentieth century Europe politics and society became intertwined as never before. Not only did war and political conflict shape daily life throughout the century; but social and economic issues, from mass unemployment and commercialization to gender relations and urban transformation, also called forth state action. The study of social history in the past century therefore demands close attention to the scope and nature of political power, and to the ideologies that envisioned how power was to be distributed, and how societies were to be remade. What were the major ideologies of twentieth century Europe? How did they imagine the societies over which they laid claim? To what social conflicts and trends did they respond? How did identities based on class, nation, gender, race, religion, generation, and locale relate to ideological reflection, society, and political practice? How did these changes affect individuals?

Goals: The pedagogical goals of the course are: to deepen your knowledge of late modern European social history in all its drama and complexity; to build your expository and critical skills through writing and discussion; to give you familiarity with a primary source that has become ubiquitous in contemporary culture, namely “life writing” (e.g., memoir, autobiography, diary); and to relate this source critically to larger historical narratives and problems.

Assignments and Grading:
Three-credit students: one four-page essay (Feb. 13), one ten-page (minimum) research paper (Apr. 29), a midterm (Mar. 6), a cumulative final (May 8), and discussion.
Four-credit students: one eight-page essay (Feb. 13), one fourteen-page (minimum) research paper (Apr. 29), a midterm (Mar. 6), a cumulative final (May 8), and discussion. (Students will receive more information in the course of the semester on the research papers.)
Graduate Students: a seminar-length research paper (25-30 pgs.), midterm, and final.

All students are urged to familiarize themselves with the rules and guidelines concerning plagiarism. Cases of plagiarism or cheating will be dealt with severely. (University policy on plagiarism is available at: http://www.wisc.edu/students/saja/misconduct/UWS14.html).
Due dates for papers and exam dates are firm; exceptions will be considered only in two cases, dire personal crisis, or the end of the world, in which case the information contained herein is moot.

Discussion: While I’ll include discussion throughout lectures, we will have seven separate lecture periods when we’ll discuss primary source reading. For these class sessions, several students will be designated as “lead discussants,” or panelists, and asked to comment on a number of pre-circulated questions before the entire class has the chance to “weigh in” on the reading. Each class member will serve as a lead discussant at least once. These discussions usually become quite lively, so be ready to critique, argue (respectfully), and enjoy. The success of each discussion is of course dependent on your attending all lectures and staying up-to-date with course readings. Your discussion grade hinges not only on the thoughtfulness and coherence of your comment as a panelist but also on your contributions to general class discussion.

Undergraduate Grading:
- Shorter essay=15%
- Research paper=25%
- Discussion=15%
- Midterm=20%
- Final=25%

Graduate Grading:
