EXAMS:

There will be three take-home exams in the course. The first two exams (tentatively due during the weeks of February 19th and April 2nd) will be handed out approximately a week-and-a-half beforehand and will consist of a choice of essays covering all readings and lectures up until the exam week. A take-home final handed out during the week of April 30th and due on the last day of class will consist of two essays and will cover primarily readings and lectures since the last exam. Each of the first two exams will count for 25% of your grade with the final counting for 50%.

DISCUSSION SECTIONS:

Because of the amount of material to be covered and the number of students in the class, it will not be possible to hold regular discussions during class periods. Instead, I have arranged to hold a series of informal discussion sections approximately every two weeks as noted below. Two sections will be held during each week - times and rooms to be announced during the first week of class. Though attendance at these sections will be voluntary, student participation in discussions will be taken into account especially in cases of border-line final grades.
