

George L. Mosse Distinguished Graduate Fellowships Modern Jewish History

Department of History
University of Wisconsin-Madison

The George L. Mosse Distinguished Graduate Fellowships in Modern Jewish History are intended to promote the study of modern Jewish history within the framework of European or American history by attracting outstanding Ph.D. candidates. Students with an interest in other areas of modern Jewish history are strongly encouraged to apply.

The fellowship package consists of five years of guaranteed support: two years fellowship; one year TA or PA; one year Mosse Teaching Fellowship; one year study at the Hebrew University under the auspices of the George L. Mosse Exchange Program.

Students can also take advantage of the thirty-five faculty from seventeen disciplines associated with the George L. Mosse/Laurence A. Weinstein Center for Jewish Studies, an interdisciplinary program. Information on the Center, and faculty profiles can be found at: <http://polyglot.lss.wisc.edu/jewishst/faculty.htm>

Application Information:

Admission to the Department of History at UW-Madison and the Mosse Fellowships can be found at: <http://history.wisc.edu> or contact Jane Williams, jwillia@wisc.edu, 1-608-263-1962.

Candidates for the Mosse Fellowships:

Submit an application to the UW-Madison Dept. of History, specifying you wish to be considered for the Mosse Fellowship in Modern Jewish History on the Supplemental Information for Fellowships and Teaching Assistantships form found on the History Department webpage: <http://history.wisc.edu/graduate/admissions.htm>

For additional information on the Mosse Fellowships:

David Sorkin, Frances and Laurence Weinstein Prof. of History and Jewish Studies, djsorkin@wisc.edu
Tony Michels, George L. Mosse Associate Prof. of American Jewish History and Jewish Studies, aemichels@wisc.edu
John Tortorice, Director Mosse Program, jtortori@wisc.edu

Application Deadline is December 1.

<http://mosseprogram.wisc.edu>

University of Wisconsin
Department of HISTORY

Graduate Admissions • Department of History • University of Wisconsin-Madison
3211 Mosse Humanities • 455 N. Park St. • Madison, WI 53706