What History Tells: George Mosse on European Cultural History, 1860-1918

Online course at UW-Madison

Be Part of the Legend

What History Tells: George Mosse on European Cultural History, 1860-1918
Monday, Oct 5-Saturday, Oct 31
Online
Program #5720; $150

Professor George Mosse was a legend at UW-Madison, where he taught history from 1955-1988. He was renowned for ability to bring the past to life through his charm and charisma.

Whether you were one of the many students who flocked to his classes, or simply wish you'd been there, this online course provides you the chance to participate in a class taught by a great historian and teacher.

“We all have our myths, it is just that mine are closer to reality.”
— George Mosse

- Watch lectures at your own pace through Oct 31; new lectures posted weekly
- View Professor Mosse’s 1982 lectures
- Receive a copy of his memoir, Confronting History
- Access Mosse's original class syllabi, video interviews, and handwritten course notes
- Contribute to online discussions

Facilitated by Skye Doney, historian with the George L. Mosse Program.

Register Today!
go.wisc.edu/mosse