

UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN
Department of History
Semester 2, 1984-85

HISTORY 351

Seventeenth-Century Europe

Mr. Sella

A) INTRODUCTION

1. The Concept of Europe
The Place of the 17th Century in European History

B) STRUCTURES

2. Population, Wealth, and Poverty
PENNINGTON, Seventeenth-Century Europe, ch. III
3. Society
PENNINGTON, ch. IV
+ KAMEN, The Iron Century, chs. 4, 5, 6
4. The System of States
PENNINGTON, ch. II

C. EVENTS AND IDEAS

5. The International Scene: War and the Balance of Power
PENNINGTON, chs. XI and XIII (to p. 303)
- 6-8. The Domestic Scene: Absolutism and Rebellion
 - a) France
PENNINGTON, ch. XII
ZAGORIN, Rebels and Rulers, vol. II, pp. 1-12 and ch. 13
 - b) Spain
PENNINGTON, ch. XIV
ZAGORIN, pp. 31-37
 - c) England and the Netherlands
PENNINGTON, ch. XVII (to p. 407)
ZAGORIN, chs. 12 and 14
9. The Problem of Authority
PENNINGTON, ch. VIII
- 10-11. The Intellectual Scene
PENNINGTON, chs. V and VI
BUTTERFIELD, Origins of Modern Science
12. Was There a "General Crisis"?
RABB, The Struggle for Stability in Early Modern Europe.

D) TOWARD A NEW ORDER

13. The Sun King
PENNINGTON, ch. XVIII
GOUBERT, Louis XIV and 20 Million Frenchmen
14. New Powers in Central and Eastern Europe
PENNINGTON, pp. 303-316 and ch. XVI
15. The Rise of Britain
PENNINGTON, pp. 408-421.