HISTORY 361: THE EMERGENCE OF MODERN BRITAIN 1485-1660

Prof. Johann Sommerville
5214 Humanities
Office Hours: 2-4 Tuesdays

This course will explore a decisive period in the making of modern Britain, and of the modern western world. Though the social, economic and intellectual aspects of the period will not be neglected, the main focus of the course will be on political and constitutional change. The course will begin with a broad introduction to early-modern Britain. Then we will examine how the turbulent period of the Wars of the Roses was ended, and how the Tudor monarchy broke the independence of the 'overmighty magnates' of late-medieval England. The Tudors succeeded in introducing far greater unity and centralization than had existed earlier, and this will be the main theme of the first half of the course. Topics discussed will include the Reformation, the so-called 'Tudor Revolution in Government', the bitter factional politics of the court of Henry VIII, the Marian Reaction and the 'mid-Tudor crisis', and the re-establishment of royal power in the reign of Elizabeth - when an unprecedented flowering of English culture took place, and when English sea-power staved off conquest by Catholic Spain. The succession of James, King of Scots to the English throne in 1603 united the Scottish and English monarchies but the new Stuart dynasty was soon faced with grave problems. The second half of the course will examine the ways in which financial, constitutional and religious issues combined to lead to civil war and to the execution of the King and the introduction of a republic in England in 1649. We will also see how the advent of a military despotism and the proliferation of radical ideas led the English to re-introduce monarchy in 1660.

Required texts:

John Guy, Tudor England (covers England 1485-1603: use this as the basic textbook for the first half of the course)

A.G.Dickens, The English Reformation (useful for the Reformation and also for questions of Tudor thought, culture and politics in general)

Christopher Haigh, The reign of Elizabeth I (an up-to-date collection of essays on Elizabeth's reign, challenging some traditional interpretations)

Derek Hirst, Authority and Conflict (a balanced survey of England 1603-1658; the basic textbook for the second half of the course)

[Syllabus: History 361, 1992]

Christopher Hill, God's Englishman (biography of Oliver Cromwell in his historical context)

Required tasks:

3 credit students will (1) attend lectures; (2) take two mid-term exams (dates: 2/27 and 4/9) and a final (5/14, 2-45 p.m.).
