

Semester II Year 1979-80

| COURSE NO. | COURSE TITLE | INSTRUCTOR |
|-------------------|-----------------------------|-------------------|
| 572 | The Family in Modern Europe | Fishman |

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Employing a topical, seminar approach, this course will deal with the development of the family since the Renaissance. Although the main emphasis will be on Europe, the course will also deal with developments in America as well. Students will have an opportunity to read and discuss much of the recent literature dealing with the history of the family. The course will examine the family from several historical perspectives.

LECTURES

Largely discussions of reading with slide sessions as well.

WRITTEN ASSIGNMENTS and EXAMINATIONS

Either one larger research paper or two briefer reports.

GRADING SYSTEM

Based on the overall quality of work in the course.

REQUIRED READINGS

See attached list. Some other readings will be on reserve.

THE UNIVERSITY OF WISCONSIN
Department of History

Semester II Year 1979-80

| COURSE NO. | COURSE TITLE | INSTRUCTOR |
|-------------------|-----------------------------|-------------------|
| 572 | The Family in Modern Europe | Fishman |

COURSE DESCRIPTION

Employing a topical, seminar approach, this course will deal with the development of the family since the Renaissance. Although the main emphasis will be on Europe, the course will also deal with developments in America as well. Students will have an opportunity to read and discuss much of the recent literature dealing with the history of the family. The course will examine the family from several historical perspectives.

LECTURES

Largely discussions of reading with slide sessions as well.

WRITTEN ASSIGNMENTS and EXAMINATIONS

Either one larger research paper or two briefer reports.

GRADING SYSTEM

Based on the overall quality of work in the course.

REQUIRED READINGS

See attached list. Some other readings will be on reserve.