REVOLUTION AND FASCISM IN SPAIN, ITALY AND PORTUGAL

Description: This course examines the dramatic political and social conflicts of Spain, Italy and Portugal in modern times. No other countries presented such a broad and full gamut of radical ideologies, movements and to some extent institutional changes since the nineteenth century. Main emphases will be on the breakthrough of modern liberalism, the rise of the revolutionary left, the onset of fascism, the Spanish Civil War, the Portuguese Revolution and the stabilization of the current democratic regimes. Study will be to some extent topical and comparative analyzing all three countries in terms of similar conflicts, movements and phases of development.

Lectures: There will be three lectures each week, punctuated and/or followed by questions or brief discussion.

Exams and Assignments: There will be three hours of written exams, a one-hour six weeks exam and a two-hour final. In addition, all students must submit a five-page essay on additional reading from the recommended list (or some other book approved by the instructor) no later than November 13.

Students registered for four credits must also prepare a research paper or a longer essay on additional reading (15 pages or more in length), the topic of which must be defined by individual consultation with the instructor no later than September 30. This will be due November 27. Graduate students registered for credit should consult with the instructor.

Grading: For 3-credit students, the first exam will amount to about 25% of the final grade, the paper about 20% and the final exam about 50-55%.

For 4-credit students, the first exam will amount to about 20% of the final grade, the final about 45%, the short essay 10% and the research paper 25%.
