History 425:
A History of Poland

Professor Kathryn Ciancia
Office Hours: Tuesday, 3:30-5:00pm, and by appointment
Office: Mosse Humanities Building 4133
Email: ciancia@wisc.edu
Lectures: Tuesday, Thursday, 11:00am-12:15pm, Mosse Humanities Building 1217

Course description
Should you fight political oppression with words or actions? Who is allowed in the nation and who is kept outside? How and why do ordinary people commit acts of violence? Most important, how do we tell our nation’s history, warts and all? While such questions loom large in today’s world, they are not new to Poles. In this class, students will explore contemporary global questions by focusing on the lands that have at one point or another been considered part of Poland, as well as the experiences of Polish migrants across the world, including in Wisconsin. Through innovative written assignments and interactive lectures and discussions, we’ll discover how Poles have wrestled with critical questions of identity, conflict, and memory over time, from the medieval period to the Second World War and today’s post-communist Poland. Our discussions will revolve around a wide range of sources, including maps, travelogues, political tracts, paintings, photographs, movies, letters, and eyewitness accounts. We’ll have two “hands on” sessions—at Memorial Library’s Special Collections and at the Wisconsin Historical Society—to view their rich collections on Polish and Polish-American history, as well as two special class meetings with guest professors who will chat and answer questions about their experiences in Poland.

Course objectives
By the end of the class students should be able to:
• Explain the significance of key events, historical figures, and stories that have been covered in the course;
• Analyze (in written and verbal form) a range of primary sources, indicating what they can and cannot tell us about Polish history—and about the people who produced them;
- Participate in class discussion, listening carefully to their peers as well as volunteering their own opinions;
- Show that they can recognize, critique, and construct their own narratives of Polish history.

Assignments
- Discussion participation (30% of total grade): As indicated on the syllabus, we will dedicate some parts of lecture time to discussing the themes of the lectures and assigned readings.
  a) Posted responses (around 200 words each) to readings. You will post your responses on the weekly forum at the Learn@UW site by 6pm the day before each discussion.
  b) Class participation. You should be prepared for lively and engaged discussion, including any small group work that we do during lecture time.
- Short papers (40% of total grade—20% each): There will be two short written assignments. The questions and guidelines will be distributed separately. See the weekly class schedule for due dates.
- Final paper (30% of total grade): You will write a paper that allows us to bring together the class materials as a whole. It will be due on the last day of class.

Course Grading Criteria
I want you all to succeed in this class. In order to do so, it is critical that you know how you will be assessed.
- DISCUSSION PARTICIPATION: At the end of this syllabus, you will find the grading criteria for this element of the class. Please take a look and ask Prof. Ciancia if you have any questions.
- WRITTEN WORK: I will provide clear grading criteria for each assignment, which will also be explained in class. You are encouraged to see me if you want to chat about grading criteria prior to handing in your assignments.

Course expectations
This course meets as a group for two 75-minute sessions per week and carries the expectation that you will spend an average of three hours outside of class for each class period. As such, you should plan to allot an average of 6 hours per week for reading, writing, preparing for discussions, and other class demands in addition to class time.

APPENDIX A: Class Policies and Further Resources

Office Hours
My office hours are posted at the top of the syllabus. Please come by! These hours are set-aside specifically for students, and I would be happy to discuss any aspect of the class with you. If you are unable to make these times, please send me an email so that we can set up a mutually convenient appointment time.

Class Etiquette
There is no laptop use in class and you must make sure that all devices with a screen are switched off or put on silent for the duration of the lecture. Come and speak with me if you are concerned about this policy.

We will begin lectures on time, so please make sure that you arrive a few minutes early. Persistent tardiness (as well as going AWOL!) leads to a lower participation grade.

If there are any assigned readings for lecture, please bring them with you to class.

Papers and Assignments
Papers should be turned in on time to avoid a grade penalty. If there is a problem, it is important that you speak to Professor Ciancia in plenty of time prior to the deadline. Late papers will be penalized by a grade per day.

All assignments should be submitted by the deadline marked on the syllabus in BOTH hard and electronic copy. The electronic copy should be uploaded as a Word document onto the course’s Learn@UW site. These two documents must be identical. Unless otherwise agreed, email submissions will not be accepted.

You should clearly post the word limit. All assignments should stick to the word limit to avoid a grade penalty.

Historians use the Chicago Manual of Style, which can be found online at www.chicagomanualofstyle.org.

Academic Honesty
There is information about what constitutes plagiarism here (http://writing.wisc.edu/Handbook/QPA_plagiarism.html), but please come and speak with Professor Ciancia during office hours if you have questions or concerns.

Disabilities
Disability guidelines for course accommodations may be found at the UW McBurney Disability Resource Center site: http://www.mcburney.wisc.edu/ Please come and see Professor Ciancia if you would like to talk further about disability issues.

Religious Observance Policy
Students must notify Professor Ciancia within the first two weeks of class of the specific days or dates on which they request relief.
Writing Resources and Guidelines

The University’s Writing Center is a wonderful resource that allows you to work with a consultant to improve your written work. Take a look at their website (http://www.writing.wisc.edu/index.html) for more information.

The History Lab is a resource center where experts (PhD students) will assist you with your history papers. No matter your stage in the writing process, History Lab staff will help you sharpen your skills and become a more successful writer. In addition to helping you with the specifics of writing in the discipline of history, the experts at the lab will also provide assistance in terms of your writing style (including for non-native speakers of English).

Email protocol
If you have questions for Professor Ciancia, you should first read the information on this syllabus carefully to see if the answer you’re looking for is included. If you still cannot find an answer, you may ask the question in an email. Please be courteous and professional and allow 24 hours for an email response.

APPENDIX B: Participation Grading Scale

A: You participate enthusiastically and regularly in classroom discussions and small group-work, listening to your peers and articulating your own ideas as clearly as possible. Your comments, both in class and on the online forum, demonstrate that you have done the reading carefully, considered your own approach, and/or articulated how it fits with the general themes of the class.

B: Your contributions show that you have done the reading, but they show a less thoughtful response than that of a student achieving an “A” grade. You have thought about how the reading fits into wider themes that we have been discussing, but on a more superficial level. You participate in classroom discussions, small group-work, and the online forum, listening to your peers and articulating your own ideas, although not with the regularity or depth of a student achieving an “A.”

C: Your comments in class and on the online forum do not show that you have done the reading in any depth and/or are poorly or vaguely articulated. You include your own thoughts, but do not raise relevant questions or link the materials to the themes of the class. You contribute only rarely to class discussions and/or make comments that do not demonstrate that you have completed the readings or are engaged fully with your classmates.

D: Your comments in class are very irregular, you show no evidence that you have completed and understood the reading, and you regularly skip posting on the online forum.

F: You do not attend lectures or discussions regularly.
