INTRODUCTION
This course introduces the history of Chinese global migrations and their impact on societies in the U.S., China, and other parts of the world. Students will gain a broad understanding of Chinese migrant experiences, struggles, and contributions as ethnic minorities, and learn to critically analyze a variety of relevant primary and secondary sources.

Instruction is also designed to fulfill the University Ethnic Studies Requirement in accordance to this excerpt from Faculty Document 1736: Undergraduate Ethnic Studies General Education Requirement:

The University of Wisconsin-Madison is committed to fostering an understanding and appreciation of diversity, in the belief that doing so will:

- Better prepare students for life and careers in an increasingly multicultural U.S. environment,
- Add breadth and depth to the University curriculum, and
- Improve the campus climate.

CREDIT POLICY
This 4-credit course meets as a group for 4 hours per week (according to UW-Madison’s credit hour policy, each 50-minute class counts as one hour). The course also carries the expectation that you will spend an average of at least 2 hours outside of class for every hour in the classroom.
In other words, in addition to class time, plan to allot an average of at least 8 hours per week for reading, writing, preparing for discussions, and/or studying for quizzes and exams for this course.

READINGS
Course readings are available for download on Canvas. They are required for the satisfactory completion of all listed coursework.

Students must complete ALL of the above requirements to pass this course. There is no final exam.

Attendance and Participation: Students are expected to attend every lecture and section and to contribute to classroom activities. Watch for the sign-in sheet, complete all assigned readings, and be prepared to participate in discussion.

For sickness and other emergencies, students may miss up to THREE lectures and ONE section meeting before seeing an adverse effect on this portion of the grade. If you miss class, find a classmate who can share with you notes and announcements made because you would still be responsible for anything missed. Always communicate in advance any accommodation you might need, including religious observances, university-related travel, important life events, and disability, to help you perform better in this course.

Please refrain from using your phone or laptop for purposes unrelated to class. No photography or recording is allowed. Learning and teaching are both hard work; I appreciate your awareness and cooperation.

Reading Responses: Over the course of the semester, write a total of 4 responses—each no more than 200 words and posted to Canvas by 5 pm on the day prior to a section meeting. Your posts should discuss key points of the assigned readings as well as some thoughts and questions provoked by the readings.

Assignments and Midterm Exam: All assignment and exam questions are based on course lectures and readings. Late papers will be docked for 5 points per 24 hours. See the back pages for statements on academic integrity and resources.
