History 790: Proseminar: Empire and Colonialism in South Asia

(3 credits/In-person)

Dr. Mou Banerjee, UW-Madison

Spring 2022, Tuesdays 3:30PM - 5:25PM, Humanities 5255

Office Hours: By Zoom Appointment only (Email Instructor)

Course Description: Designed to develop historiographic command of colonial and postcolonial South Asian history as a teaching and research field. Carefully explores the master narratives or “schools” of historiography of South Asia, and analyzes the erasures as well as the normative theoretical and archival axes around which the sub-field has developed. Topics include pre-colonial modes of representing the past; the social, cultural and economic turns in colonial and nationalist historiography; legal and environmental historiographical methods; South Asia in the world/global South Asia. Intended for students in the Humanities and Social Sciences, with a background in graduate level research and writing. No prior experience of the field of South Asian history is required, but would be helpful.

Additional Course Information: The class will follow the Jigsaw Method – with students being assigned predetermined texts according to their division into 2 groups by instructor. The 2 groups will each present to their peers for 15+15 minutes at the beginning of each class, and then the floor will be open for general debate and discussion on the themes for each particular week.

Requisites: Graduate Standing

Course Designations: Graduate Attribute

Regular and Substantive Student-Instructor Interaction: This class includes:

1. Direct instruction
2. Assessing and providing feedback on student coursework
3. Facilitating group discussions regarding the course content

Credit Policy Statement: The credit standard for this course is met by an expectation of a total of 135 hours of student engagement with the course learning activities (at least 45 hours per credit), which include regularly scheduled seminar meetings, reading, writing and other student work as described in the syllabus.

Assignments: Students must participate in class discussions based on a critical analysis of weekly readings.
1. A ten-page double-spaced mid-term paper critically evaluating a particular historiographical method and an example of its practice due in the 5th week.

2. A sample syllabus (and justifying essay) for an undergraduate lecture the student would like to teach in the future, will be due in the 7th week.

3. By the end of the 9th week, the topic for the final paper must have been chosen in consultation with the instructor and a full bibliography prepared. The paper could be:

   a. A critical historiographic appraisal of three monographs on any of the themes discussed in this seminar – a classic, pioneering work, a revisionist critique of the classic, and a recent monograph (published within the last 8 years) that expands on the research and methodology of the two earlier books. Essentially, the essay would be a survey of the state of the subfield.

   b. A research paper of publishable quality using primary archival sources, that uses the critical methodologies of at least one theme discussed in the seminar to make an argument about why that particular methodology was used and how it helps to shed light on the historical event that is being analyzed.

4. An oral presentation of the main arguments being developed for this paper will be required on an appropriate day during the last week of the course.

5. The final revised version of twenty-five double-spaced pages will be due on the 10th of May. I am available to read a draft of the final paper in the last week of the semester, if the student so chooses.

Grades will be based on class discussions (20%), mid-term paper (20%), sample syllabus (20%), oral presentation and final paper (10% + 30%).

Usage of Audio Recorded Lectures Statement

Lecture materials and recordings for Hist. 450 are protected intellectual property at UW-Madison. Students in this course may use the materials and recordings for their personal use related to participation in this class. Students may also take notes solely for their personal use. If a lecture is not already recorded, you are not authorized to record my lectures without my permission unless you are considered by the university to be a qualified student with a disability requiring accommodation. [Regent Policy Document 4-1] Students may not copy or have lecture materials and recordings outside of class, including posting on internet sites or selling to commercial entities. Students are also prohibited from providing or selling their personal notes to anyone else or being paid for taking notes by any person or commercial firm without the instructor’s express written permission. Unauthorized use of these copyrighted lecture materials and recordings constitutes copyright infringement and may be addressed under the university’s policies, UWS Chapters 14 and 17, governing student academic and non-academic misconduct.

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY STATEMENT

By virtue of enrollment, each student agrees to uphold the high academic standards of the University of Wisconsin-Madison; academic misconduct is behavior that negatively impacts the integrity of the institution. Cheating, fabrication, plagiarism, unauthorized collaboration, and helping others commit these previously listed acts are examples of misconduct which may result in disciplinary action. Examples of disciplinary action include, but is not limited to, failure on the assignment/course, written reprimand, disciplinary probation, suspension, or expulsion.

ACCOMMODATIONS FOR STUDENTS WITH DISABILITIES STATEMENT

The University of Wisconsin-Madison supports the right of all enrolled students to a full and equal educational opportunity. The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), Wisconsin State Statute (36.12), and UW-Madison policy (Faculty Document 1071) require that students with disabilities be reasonably accommodated in instruction and campus life. Reasonable accommodations for students with disabilities is a shared faculty and student responsibility. Students are expected to inform faculty [me] of their need for instructional accommodations by the end of the third week of the semester, or as soon as possible after a disability has been incurred or recognized. I will work either directly with the student [you] or in coordination with the McBurney Center to identify and provide reasonable instructional accommodations. Disability information, including instructional accommodations as part of a student’s educational record, is confidential and protected under FERPA. DIVERSITY & INCLUSION STATEMENT: https://diversity.wisc.edu/

Diversity is a source of strength, creativity, and innovation for UW-Madison. We value the contributions of each person and respect the profound ways their identity, culture, background, experience, status, abilities, and opinion enrich the university community. We commit ourselves to the pursuit of excellence in teaching, research, outreach, and diversity as inextricably linked goals.

The University of Wisconsin-Madison fulfills its public mission by creating a welcoming and inclusive community for people from every background – people who as students, faculty, and staff serve Wisconsin and the world.
