Course Description:

This “Historian’s Craft” course explores how historians probe, interpret, analyze, and narrate the past. At the same time, we will delve into one of the most exciting and crucial moments in modern European history: the French Revolution. Course units focus on four pivotal questions. Why and how does Revolution break out in the ancient and powerful monarchy of France? When the revolutionaries suddenly try to create “equal rights” and destroy the old ways, how do these innovations transform the everyday lives of individuals – including aristocrats, slaves, working men and women, peasants, and religious minorities? Third, how do the revolutionaries attempt to invent democracy and why is it so difficult and so violent? And finally, how can the French possibly end their Revolution? While we pose these pivotal questions, we will pay close attention to questions of historical method. Students will analyze different types of sources, learn how to ferret out and assess evidence, and develop their own research, writing, and speaking skills.

Reading:

Course Packet of primary and secondary sources [at L & S Copy Center: 6120 Sewell Hall]
Timothy Tackett, When the King Took Flight
Mary Lynn Rampolla, A Pocket Guide to Writing in History, 8th ed.

Reading: Students will have the opportunity to discuss in the readings in lecture and/or in weekly discussion sections on Monday. Complete the reading each week for the following Monday. The above books have been ordered and should be available at the University Bookstore and on reserve in H. C. White library. They are marked with asterisks () in the assignments below. There is also a very important READER (a course packet) of xeroxed articles and documents available at the Copy Center at 6120 Sewell Hall (the Social Sciences Building) and on reserve at HC White. The reader is required and contains all reading for the course, unless marked otherwise. To save you money, I have put chapters from different textbooks into the course reader. The textbooks are listed below as “useful overviews.” The McPhee book is online via the library website.

Useful Short Overviews
Peter McPhee, The French Revolution, 1789-1799 (He has several books with more detailed accounts also.) https://search.library.wisc.edu/catalog/9913311228302121
If you are seeking a more detailed survey on some aspect of the Revolution, please ask me.

Requirements: Course grades will be based as follows: 25% participation in section and lecture; 20% final paper; 15% each for two 5-page papers; 5% each for two very short papers; 5% for your oral report and initial proposal with bibliography; 5% for your participation in Robespierre’s mock trial; 5% for peer review of final papers. All written assignments should be turned in both electronically and as hard copy on paper. The Assignment Sheet offers a more detailed list of assignments, percentages, and due dates. You are required to attend both lecture and discussion, although you will be allowed three missed classes (one freebie and two excused classes if necessary.) Any absences beyond those three will reduce your grade, unless you become very ill. Many students feel anxious about speaking up in class, but active and lively participation will increase your enjoyment, your learning, and your grade. The T.A. and I will work toward creating welcoming classrooms for students of diverse backgrounds and learning styles. If you still feel uncomfortable or shy, come to office hours and we will discuss strategies for getting over those reservations.

Credit Hours & Work Load: This 4-credit course has 4 hours of group meetings per week (each 50-minute segment of lecture and discussion counts as one hour according to UW-Madison's credit hour policy). The course also carries the expectation that you will spend an average of at least 2 hours outside of class for every hour in the classroom. In other words, in addition to class time, plan to allot an average of at least 8 hours per week for reading, researching, writing, preparing for discussions, doing peer review, and/or preparing for your oral presentation or the Robespierre trial.

Electronic Devices: Although technology can be incredibly useful, recent research suggests that laptop use in classrooms does not improve student learning and often actually hinders it. One study at York University found that students who took notes by laptop scored “11% worse on comprehension tests” than those who did not; students who were continually distracted by neighbors' computer screens earned grades 17% lower than those who were not. Stunning results: that makes one to two letter grades lower on their test scores. The researchers interpreted these results as evidence of our tendency to overestimate our ability to multi-task. In addition, a study done at UCLA and Princeton determined that taking notes by hand caused students to focus their attention more sharply and to reformulate and process the material as they listened. As a result, the students tended to remember and understand the material more fully.\(^1\) We are all interested in promoting the most effective student learning, so laptop and phone use will not be allowed during class.

Course Goals:
To analyze and reflect on deep-rooted and varied human issues, still present today, such as:
- Why is so difficult to create democracy and equality?
- Is violence ever justified to overcome oppression or injustice?
- Why and how do certain individuals forge power so effectively (or so dangerously!) in any given context?

To develop research skills and the ability to read difficult, unfamiliar texts
To improve writing and oral communication skills and to hone critical thinking by exploring unexpected

historical events and diverse human reactions
To fuse creative thinking with deep research and intensive writing skills
To conceptualize and imagine how different social groups have dealt with cataclysmic change, utopian euphoria, unexpected hardships, and so on
To evaluate the impact of vast grassroots, social movements on historical change
To gain greater understanding of the dynamics of revolutionary era and assess its many impacts on the emerging modern world, both in Europe and beyond

History Lab:  The History Lab is a writing center run by History PhD students who can to help you at any stage of the writing process: drafting your imaginative research question, outlining a paper, composing a thesis statement, or revising a draft. Book an appointment online for a one-on-one appointment: http://go.wisc.edu/hlab.

Plagiarism: The UW Writing Center offers this definition of plagiarism from the Merriam Webster Dictionary: "to steal and pass off (the ideas and words of another) as one's own" or to "present as new and original an idea or product derived from an existing source." Plagiarized work constitutes a serious offense and will receive an F. Students must produce all of their own work without borrowing any sentences or sentence fragments from the web, AI chatbots, books, or articles. All quotations should be put into quotation marks and cited. For information about what constitutes plagiarism and how to avoid it, here are two sources: http://www.plagiarism.org; http://writing.wisc.edu/Handbook/QuotingSources.html. These sites also have useful tips on paraphrasing and quoting from others' work.

COVID-19: This course meets in person. If anyone falls ill or needs to quarantine, the TA and I will set up computers in our classrooms to facilitate class participation from quarantine via Zoom. We will make adjustments in assignments and due dates for any student who becomes ill and needs flexibility.

Accommodations for Students with Disabilities:
If you need instructional accommodations, the TA and I will work with you in coordination with the McBurney Center to provide reasonable instructional and course-related accommodations. Please reach out to the McBurney Center at the very the beginning of the semester and let me know as well. McBurney Disability Resource Center. Disability information, including any instructional accommodation as part of a student's educational record, is confidential and protected under FERPA.
