Course Description and Learning Goals:

If one asks ten people what “Japan” means to them, one might get ten different answers. Manga, anime, Japanese film, samurai, Zen Buddhism, tea ceremony among other phenomena are all associated with Japan. Can we find something unifying these seemingly diverse practices? In this course, we will discuss the meaning of some of these practices in historical context and also how Japanese people combined them in various ways. For example, take samurai, tea-ceremony and Zen Buddhism. The samurai are usually associated with combat, while the tea ceremony and Zen Buddhism are usually linked to imperial and aristocratic culture. However, we will note how imperial culture, aristocratic practices, and Zen Buddhism in particular, were essential to the identity of the samurai. In this way, Japanese culture brings seemingly separate and contradictory practices together in a unique constellation, which continues to inform many facets of life in Japan.

Through looking at practices associated with Japan, the course aims to introduce students to the culture, politics and intellectual currents in Japan from ancient times to the present. After this introduction, students should be well-equipped to form their own opinions about Japan.

The course will allow students to analyze writings about history and to construct historical arguments. Students will also learn to think historically about politics and culture, not only in Japan, but in the world.

Among the larger questions we will ask include: How do we periodize Japanese history? How should we understand “modern” Japan in relation to its premodern past? The implications of these questions go well beyond Japan.

The more specific themes we will study include: whether we can talk about a unique Japanese culture, the influence of China on Japan and how Japan’s relation to China and East Asia changes throughout history, the emergence of a samurai/shogunal system in Japan, Zen Buddhism, Japanese Confucianism and national learning in the Edo period (1604-1868), Japanese imperialism and its legacies for the present, and the cultural, intellectual and artistic changes that took place in various periods of Japanese history.

Credit Hours and Policy

This 4-credit course meets as a group for 4 hours per week (each 75 minute segment of lecture and discussion counts as one hour according to UW-Madison's credit hour policy). Assignments, Quizzes and Exams

Participate by Writing Discussion Posts and Responding to your Peer's Comments

Each week a number of readings will be assigned, and you are to respond to these readings in posts. Each post should be approximately 200-250 words and is an important part of your grade. These posts are due on every Monday and Wednesday by 5pm. They are not meant to cause you stress, but the goal is to get you to start thinking about the material. In your posts, you might answer the questions posted on the syllabus after every week. For each session, you are also required to comment on a fellow classmate's post. The comment should be about 50-100 words and can either disagree with a point or develop some of the ideas in it. These replies are due by Tuesday at 10pm and Thursday at 10 pm. Given that your fellow students might be commenting on your work, I strongly urge you to turn in your discussion posts on time.

Quizzes and Exams

There are two quizzes, two exams and one paper in this class. The quizzes will be short answer or multiple choice and given on canvas. They will be completed outside of class. The mid-term exam will be in class essay questions and final exam will be a cumulative take home exam, which will consist of essay questions. They consist of open questions, which should give students an opportunity to express what they have learned over the semester.

Paper

All students will write a paper, (5-7 pages, 10-15 pages for honors, Times Roman Font 12, double space) on a topic of your choice.

While topics may vary, here are some possibilities:

Did Zen Buddhism play an important role in samurai life? If so, why?

The Nara and Heian courts took the Chinese Tang dynasty as a model. How do you explain the transformation of the Chinese model in Japan?

Japan's position in the world changed in the 20th century. How do you explain this shift?

There are those who describe Japanese imperialism as "imperialism against imperialism." Do you agree with this statement? Explain your answer.

Did the position of women in Japan improve in the 20th century? Why or why not?

Notice that each of these questions encourages you to formulate a thesis, which you will defend in the argument of your paper. As you do the readings for the course, you should be able to formulate questions that interest you.

Academic Honesty Policy

One of the fundamental principles of this university is that "academic honesty and integrity are fundamental to the mission of higher education and of the University of Wisconsin system" (Wisconsin Administrative Code 14.01). Plagiarism is...

- Using someone else's words or ideas without proper documentation.

- Copying some portion of your text from another source without proper acknowledgement of indebtedness (NOTE: This includes AI software such as ChatGPT).
- Borrowing another person’s specific ideas without documenting their source.
- Having another person correct or revise your work. This differs from getting feedback from a writing group, or from an individual, which you then attempt to implement.
- Turning in an assignment written by another person, from an essay “service,” or from a website (including reproductions of such essays or papers).

History Lab

The History Lab will be an excellent place to improve your writing assignments because it is a resource center where experts (PhD students) will assist you with your history papers. No matter your stage in the writing process — choosing a topic, conducting research, composing a thesis, outlining your argument, revising your drafts — the History Lab staff can help you sharpen your skills and become a more successful writer.
