Communication

Lecture's Content and Other Course Assignments: Contact Ik kittisenee@wisc.edu

Attendance, Absence, and Weekly Discussion Posts: Contact Natalie nbelew@wisc.edu

Golden Rule for Communication Both of us are graduate students. As we join this course, we learn from you as much as you learn from us. We see ourselves as your learning coaches and thinking partners. Thus, please do not hesitate to “communicate” if you encounter any difficulties or challenges in attending lectures or discussion sections. Lectures related matters should be directed to Ik while the discussion section related matters should be directed to Natalie. This is to make clear about the division of labor. Do keep in mind that we are here to help you grow both academically and professionally, and also ultimately to nurture you to become a compassionate and thoughtful person. The level of respect you offer to Ik should be equal to how you treat your TA.

Since mindfulness, compassion, and interbeing—I am because you are—are the key issues we learn from Buddhism in this course, the communication between the learning coaches and students as well as among the students themselves should be aligned with the ethical ideas we learn. We all thereby strive to practice communication with care, respect, and wisdom.

I aim to reply to your emails within 24 hours on weekdays. Do not expect a response after 5pm or during the weekends. If you have not received a response from me in two business days, please send a follow-up. I cannot guarantee a response in the 12 hours before an assignment is due, so please plan ahead. If your concern is complicated or not time-sensitive, coming to office hours or scheduling an appointment is ideal.

Course Description

This course introduces Global Buddhism, showing how this rich and complex religious tradition has travelled across time and geographical spaces. Starting from the Axial Age when many traditions around the Globe like Confucianism, Daoism, Hinduism, and Jainism shared common ethical enquiries to make sense of their existential crisis, the course further explores Buddhism in the wake of Mercantilism, Colonialism, Second World War, Cold War, Globalization, and in contemporary fast-paced global and ecological disruptions. Alongside this historical survey of Global Buddhism, this course offers the understanding of the key Buddhist ethical ideas and practices to cast Buddhism not only as a religious philosophy but also as a lived and living tradition. Moreover, this course will shed light on the under-recognized history of Buddhism in the Heartland of America where UW-Madison has particularly played a vital role in the history of Global Buddhism. By so doing, this course will provide a visit to Memorial Library and Chazen Art Museum to uncover the Hidden Gems of the rare Buddhist materials and collections in relation to the history of Global Buddhism.

Approaches

The question that arises from presenting Global Buddhism is how to represent Buddhist experiences and practices which vary across the globe. In this scenario, the major and/or dominant traditions have always been prioritized; smaller traditions have often been set aside. This is a point where we can make a difference. In this course, I honor smaller Buddhist traditions as equally important as the mainstream ones, and I incorporate those traditions as an integral part of getting access to the foundational understanding of Global Buddhism.

Love is another approach/theme to Introduction to Buddhism in this semester. We currently are in the midst of natural calamity, significant climate change, wars, violence, partitions, dispossessions, economic crisis, on-going pandemics as well as everyday social injustices and structural violence. We are committed to employ love, compassion, and wisdom in co-existing and building this learning community as reflected on the course readers: the two major works on Buddhist peace activism which stem from individual change and practice.

Course Readers

Ghosananda, Maha. Step by Step: Meditations on Wisdom and Compassion. Berkeley, Calif.: Parallax Press, 1992.

(available as a hardcopy at Memorial Library and as a digital copy on Canvas, with granted permission by Parallax Press)

Nhất Hạnh, Thích. True Love: A Practice for Awakening the Heart. Boston: Shambhala, 2004.

(available as hardcopy at Memorial Library and as a digital copy on UW library website)

Learning Outcomes

- ∞ Students gain a basic understanding of Buddhist ethical ideas and lived practices.
- ∞ Students understand the nexus of global connection and historical forces in shaping and reshaping Buddhist histories.
- ∞ Students are able to think critically, creatively, and mindfully about the influences of Buddhism on popular cultures and media, and also to see Buddhism in relation to the contemporary phenomena.
- ∞ Learning coaches and thinking partners are able to engage with students in a meaningful study environment.

Workload

Karma in Buddhism means action and that can be translated into your participation and engagement with this course. Regular attendance both in lectures and discussion sections are required to ensure you can catch up with the course's rich and complicated content. Weekly lectures take 2.5 hours. (75 minutes each lecture) while discussion takes 50 minutes. In addition to regular attendance and participation, you are expected to spend approximately 8 – 8.5 hours on reading/listening/watching weekly materials and posting your responses on Canvas Discussion board.

Learning Assessment (100%)

15% Attendance and Participation in Lectures

Attendance and participation in lectures are required to ensure that you can follow the complicated lessons. You may have up to two absences from the lecture over the course of the semester. Please email Natalie Belew (nbelew@wisc.edu) in advance if you do plan to use one of those absences. In the case you fail to contact Natalie ahead of time or miss beyond the two absences, you will be asked to write a 500-word reflection on the assigned readings in connection to the lecture. It is also your responsibility to connect with another student for the notes in order to complete your reflection assignment and not risk falling behind.

15% Attendance and Participation in Discussion Sections

Attendance and participation in Discussion Sections are required to ensure that you can follow the complicated lessons. You may have up to two absences from the discussion section over the course of the semester. Please email Natalie Belew (nbelew@wisc.edu) in advance if you do plan to use one of those absences. In the case you fail to contact Natalie ahead of time or miss beyond the two absences, you will be asked to write a 500-word reflection on the assigned readings in connection to the lecture. It is also your responsibility to connect with another student for the notes in order to complete your reflection assignment and not risk falling behind.

10% Canvas Discussion Posts (Due by Monday Noon of the following week)

You are required to post on TWO discussion threads a week. The due is by Monday Noon of the following week. The threads will be closed for comments afterwards. Most of the Discussion threads will be related to the lectures. This allows you to engage in class conversation beyond our lecture hall.

15% Journey to the West Reflective Essay (Due on Canvas by 11:59 pm of March 18, 2025)

This reflective essay asks you to critically and creatively analyze two films: The Monkey King 2 and Xuanzang, and also makes a dialogue with at least one of the Buddhist primary sources we read in class. The length of this reflective essay is 5 – 6 pages (Font: Times New Roman 12 pts, double-spaced). This assignment will appear as an academic writing with the intro, body, and conclusion, also with appropriate amounts of quotes and references (Chicago style, 16th edition). This essay should be well-organized with a clear thesis statement at the opening statement and showing the topic sentence in each paragraph. The detailed rubrics of this assignment will be posted on Canvas.

15% Hidden Gems at UW Op-Ed Writing (Due on Canvas by 11:59 pm of April 20, 2025)

This assignment allows you to express your appreciation of the Hidden Gems of Buddhist collections at UW both at Memorial Library and Chazen Art Museum. The style of this writing is an Op-Ed piece as you can see in the academic newsletters or the policy news. The language of this writing should appear persuasive. The length of this writing is 3 – 5 pages (Font: Times New Roman 12 pts, double-spaced). You may consult how to write an Op-Ed piece from this link:

https://projects.iq.harvard.edu/files/hks-communications-program/files/new_seglin_how_to_write_an_oped_1_25_17_7.pdf

The detailed rubrics of this assignment will be posted on Canvas.

10% Oral Exit Exam (Week 15 or earlier by appointment)

This Oral Exit Exam ensures that everyone has a chance to meet me one-on-one for a 10-minute conversation before you leave this course. It is a chance to meaningfully check your understanding of the course. During the exam, I may ask you a contemplative question regarding how you understand the course readers: Maha Ghosananda's Step by Step and Thich Nhat Hanh's True Love. You are absolutely welcome to bring with you these two books if that would boost your confidence when answering the question. An example of the question is, How can True Love be obtained Step by Step? Do not freak out about this exam as it is essentially a casual conversation. As long as you finish reading these two books, your good karma will yield an impressive result.

20% Final Project (Due on Canvas by 11:59 pm of May 8, 2025)

As you notice, the other assignments are about academic or semi-academic writings. The final project provides you an opportunity to come up with a creative expression. You may select any particular story or theme about the Introduction to Buddhism for the final project. Stories about people, places, objects, monuments, rituals, and memories are particularly welcome. The following are the options for your final project.

-Photographic Essay (original, 20 images with captions) plus a 1000-word summary of your project

-Vlog/Short film/Documentary/Anime (10 mins. length, professionally edited)

-A Collection of Poems (12 pages minimum) plus a 500-word summary of your overall ideas

-Magazine (20 pages minimum)

-Academic Essay (10 pages minimum, double-spaced, 12 pts font, Times New Roman, excluding bibliography-Chicago style, 16th edition)

Students should discuss the ideas of their final project with the instructor at least 4 weeks prior to the deadline.

The detailed rubrics of each category will be posted on Canvas.

Late Work Policy

The ultimate goal of higher education is to help students grow intellectually, mentally, and professionally. Good discipline is a part of this learning process. Late submission is subject to minus 1% per day. Submissions later than the 3rd day after the deadline will not be accepted.

A Statement of Generative AI

This course encourages the exercise of full capacity of human being towards self-reliance and liberation. The use of artificial intelligence (AI) tools and applications (including, but not limited to, Copilot, DALL-E, and others) for course assignments and assessments does not support the learning objectives of this course and is prohibited. Using them in any way for this course is a violation of the course's expectations and will be addressed through UW–Madison's academic misconduct policy, specifically UWS 14.03(1)b (b) Uses unauthorized materials or fabricated data in any academic exercise.

Senior Auditors

We welcome senior auditors in this class. Since this class is interactive in style and depends on engagement with assigned texts, you will get much more out of the class if you plan to read and discuss the course material. In past years, senior auditors have often found it enjoyable to form their own discussion section and meet outside of class to discuss readings and other course assignments.

Accommodations for Students with Disabilities Statement

The University of Wisconsin-Madison supports the right of all enrolled students to a full and equal educational opportunity. The Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), Wisconsin State Statute (36.12), and UW-Madison policy (Faculty Document 1071) require that students with disabilities be reasonably accommodated in instruction and campus life. Reasonable accommodations for students with disabilities is a shared faculty and student responsibility. Students are expected to inform the faculty instructor of their need for instructional accommodations by the end of the third week of the semester, or as soon as possible after a disability has been incurred or recognized. Faculty [I], will work either directly with the student [you] or in coordination with the McBurney Center to identify and provide reasonable instructional accommodations. Disability information, including instructional accommodations as part of a student's educational record, is confidential and protected under FERPA. (See: McBurney Disability Resource Center)

Religious Observances

Please notify your TA (Natalie Belew: nbelew@wisc.edu) in advance if you need to miss class due to participation in religious holidays.

Diversity and Inclusion Statement

Diversity is a source of strength, creativity, and innovation for UW-Madison. We value the contributions of each person and respect the profound ways their identity, culture, background, experience, status, abilities, and opinion enrich the university community. We commit ourselves to the pursuit of excellence in teaching, research, outreach, and diversity as inextricably linked goals. The University of Wisconsin-Madison fulfills its public mission by creating a welcoming and inclusive community for people from every background – people who as students, faculty, and staff serve Wisconsin and the world.

UW-Madison Land Acknowledgement

The University of Wisconsin–Madison occupies ancestral Ho-Chunk land, a place their nation has called Teejop (day-JOPE) since time immemorial. In an 1832 treaty, the Ho-Chunk were forced to cede this territory. Decades of ethnic cleansing followed when both the federal and state government repeatedly, but unsuccessfully, sought to forcibly remove the Ho-Chunk from Wisconsin. This history of colonization informs our shared future of collaboration and innovation.

Today, UW–Madison respects the inherent sovereignty of the Ho-Chunk Nation, along with the eleven other First Nations of Wisconsin.

Academic Standards and Grading Policy

This class will adhere strictly to prevailing academic standards, UW regulations, and civil law regarding plagiarism, fair use of other people's intellectual property, and cheating on class assignments. Please ask if you have any questions about what constitutes fair use or proper behavior. The basic rules are to do your own work, respect the work of others -- whether that of a classmate or a published author -- and do not attempt to take unfair advantage of your classmates as you complete the assignments for this class. Any suspected violations of academic standards will be promptly investigated. Confirmed offenses will result in a failing grade for the course and will be reported to the Office of Student Assistance and Support.
