In this course we will watch, read about and discuss a series of films on various medieval subjects. Some of these films will be blockbusters, but most will be films that are little known to the general public. Some of them will be recent, but most will date from the middle to late 20th century. Some of them will be American, the rest European and Asian. In the course of the seminars, the students will gain an awareness of medieval realities and medieval texts on which these films are based. However, we will move beyond simply noting whether each film is offering a faithful or an unfaithful representation of history and will attempt to understand what attracted modern filmmakers to medieval history in the first place and what concerns – be they artistic, political, social, religious, etc. – made them represent it in the ways that they did. Two topics in particular will be at the center of our discussion: violence and gender.

TRIGGER WARNING: The films we will be discussing will be dealing with many violent themes, including rape.

CREDIT POLICY STATEMENT: The credit standard for this 3-credit course is met by an expectation of a total of 135 hours of student engagement with the course's learning activities (at least 45 hours per credit or 9 hours per week), which include regularly scheduled meeting times (group seminar meetings of 115 minutes per week), dedicated online time, reading, writing, individual consultations with the instructor, and other student work as described in the syllabus.

LEARNING OBJECTIVES:

At the end of this course, students will know or be able to...

1. Create, plan, and execute a significant, self-designed and self-driven research project.
2. Develop an original, well-substantiated argument that synthesizes diverse historical knowledge and is based on a critical analysis of primary sources.
3. Communicate original historical research findings clearly and effectively.
4. Lead and participate productively in purposeful collaboration, discussion, and feedback

GRADE:

- Participation: 30%

- Research Topic: 5%
- Research Question: 5%
- Annotated bibliography: 5%
- Outline (1-2 pages double-spaced; has to contain your research question and your provisional thesis): 5%
- Rough draft (submitted on-time): 5%
- Final presentation: 15%
- Final draft: 30%

LATE ASSIGNMENTS: assignments submitted late will receive a reduction of 5% per workday.

FINAL PAPER ASSIGNMENT: The students will have to choose a film, a cluster of films, or a topic that runs across a series of films, which they will analyze in their essays and oral presentations. The thesis statement will have to do with either violence or gender (or both).

The grade for the paper assignment will be based on the following:

- A clear, yet original thesis statement.
- Clear structure with one idea per paragraph.
- A close analysis of a film or films with discussions of specific scenes.
- Length of at least 15 pages (double-spaced).
- Incorporation of basic information about the film (name of director, date and country of production).
- An understanding of the historical period represented in the film.
- An understanding of the historical period when the film was made.
- Engagement with scholarship (peer-reviewed books and articles)
- An awareness that the reader might not have watched the film.
